STATINTL

1. On 5 April 1963, Mr. Stewart Alsop called me to state that he is writing an article on Mr. McCone and the new organization in CIA. He didn't wish any secrets but just views on how the new organization worked.

2. I replied that I didn't feel that I was in a position to comment publicly on the workings of the new organization, and that my present job involved classified matters which were not suitable subjects for discussion. My position was to try and develop techniques in which science could assist intelligence processes. Mr. Alsop then indicated that probably there wasn't much I could give him of value, but that he might call me again later.
